

Military-family organizer toolkit

An everyday-life welcome kit with local resource prompts and clear boundaries for a family-led community.

01 / Before you invite people

1. Look for an existing group at nayborlee.com/explore before starting another.
2. Choose a recognizable name, broad location, and a clear description of who belongs.
3. Decide on a free public introduction or a fully private group with Organizer coverage. Member conversations and lists stay inside the group in either case.
4. Propose the group at nayborlee.com/start. Wait for review and complete the setup shown in your account before inviting members.
5. Agree who will welcome people and help organize. Choose joining rules that fit your community.
6. Post the welcome below and make one small plan. Share invitations using your group's chosen joining method.

Your first month

Week 1: Make introductions easy - Ask an everyday interest question without requesting sensitive details.

Week 2: Offer a useful starting point - Share a few checked official public resource links.

Week 3: Meet around an interest - Try a short walk or coffee at a suitable public place.

Week 4: Share the welcoming - Invite another member to help welcome new arrivals.

02 / Words you can make your own

Replace every bracketed prompt before sharing. Use a public introduction link on a public flyer; share one-use invitation links only with their intended recipients.

An invitation

Hello! [Group name] is a family-led Nayborlee community for [broad area, city]. We're here for everyday introductions, practical local links, and small plans together. We are not an official military or command group. Once approved and ready, join through [appropriate group or invitation link]. Members participate free. Please do not share operational or sensitive information.

Your first welcome post

Welcome! Share a first name and an everyday interest if you would like. Public local resources: [official links]. Our first simple plan is [activity/details]. Do not share deployment dates, unit movements, access instructions, or operational information. Use official channels for official matters.

A simple first-plan template

Who would like to join [activity]? When: [day and time]. Where: [confirmed meeting place]. Access: [step-free route / seating / other useful notes]. Cost or what to bring: [details]. Reply by [date] if interested. Backup plan: [rain or space alternative].

A few community agreements

- Keep conversation useful, kind, and connected to the group's purpose.
- Ask before sharing another person's photo or personal details. Keep home, unit, and access information out of public materials.
- Use official channels for urgent issues, formal notices, and emergencies.
- Check details with the original source. Record when each local link was last checked.

03 / Make it local

Keep this worksheet for your organizing team. Share only the details appropriate for your public introduction or member group. Add official links instead of unverified advice.

Group name / broad area / city / ZIP

Who belongs and how joining works

Resident / family-led description

Official public community-resource links

Library / recreation / newcomer links

Suitable public meeting place and access

First small gathering

Organizer task handover plan

Local links last checked: _____ By: _____

Useful starting points

Find a group: nayborlee.com/explore Start a group: nayborlee.com/start County activities and area guides: nayborlee.com/happenings Current pricing and trial terms: nayborlee.com/pricing

Neighbors participate free. A public-introduction group is free. Fully private groups use an Organizer plan. Review current pricing and any applicable trial renewal terms before choosing a paid plan.